A braille comic!

The project "The World At Hand – A Braille Comic" brought together sighted, blind, and visually impaired individuals from Poland, Greece, and Cyprus to explore how the world is perceived through the senses, break stereotypes, and build empathetic relationships.

The workshops carried out as part of the youth exchange held in Poland provided an opportunity for the exchange of experiences, mutual understanding, and co-creation – participants designed a comic that told the story of the lives of blind individuals, their challenges, passions, interpersonal relationships, and the importance of the senses in the broader perception of the world.

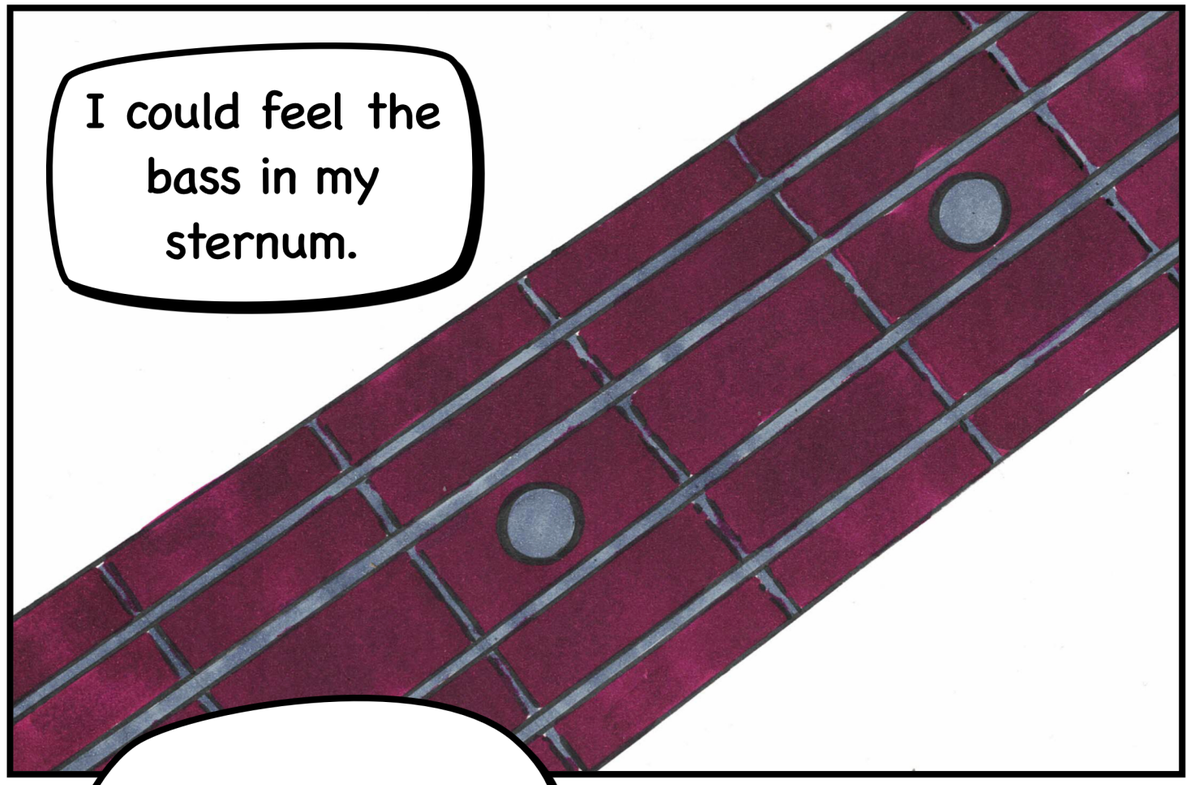

The comic stories were divided into 3 categories:

1. My passions in the world of senses
2. Communication and interpersonal relationships
3. In the embrace of nature

Hey, mom? What was your first concert like?

Well, it's a funny story.

I was just a little older than you.

I could feel the bass in my sternum.

Was there a big crowd?

The venue was packed..

..and everybody was dancing.

But as the concert was reaching its peak...

the lights went out...

...and the audience stood still.

What did you do, then?

I kept dancing

And eventually...

everyone joined in as well.

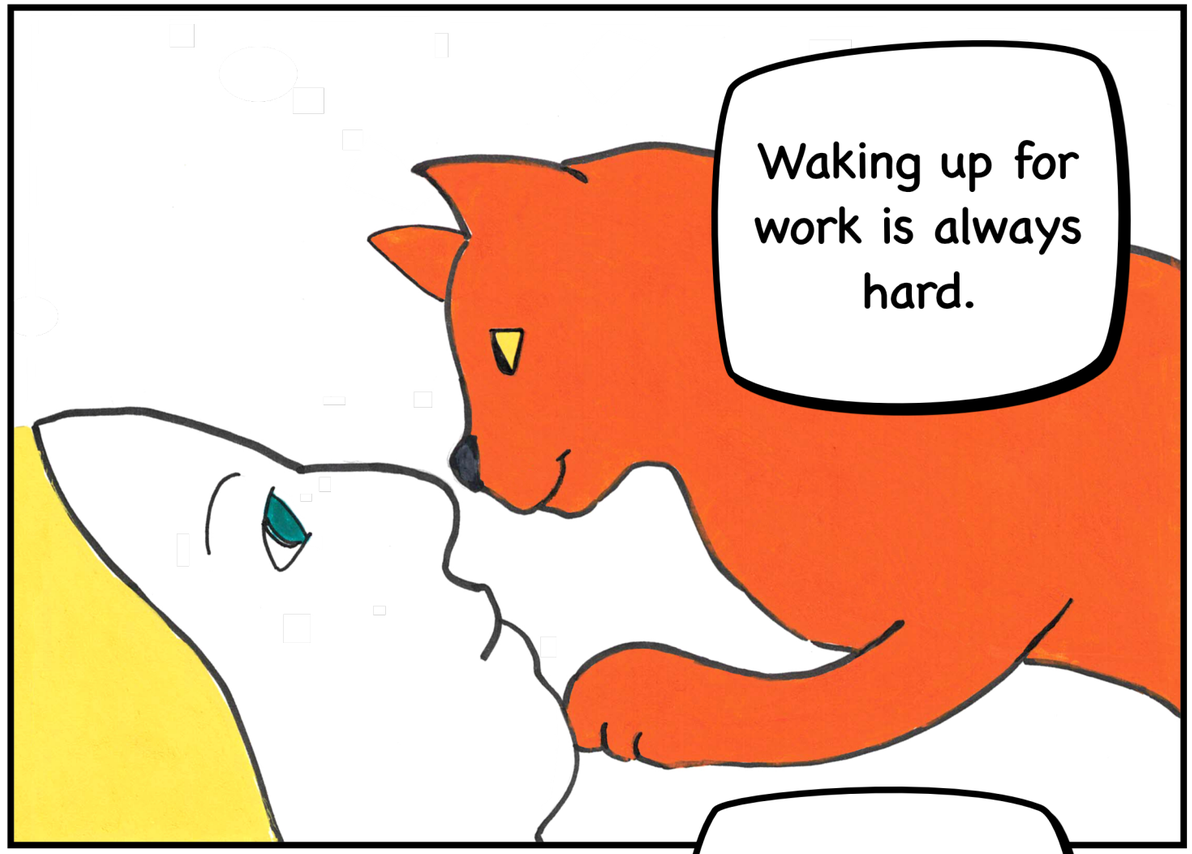

What are the chances that the lights will turn off at this concert as well?

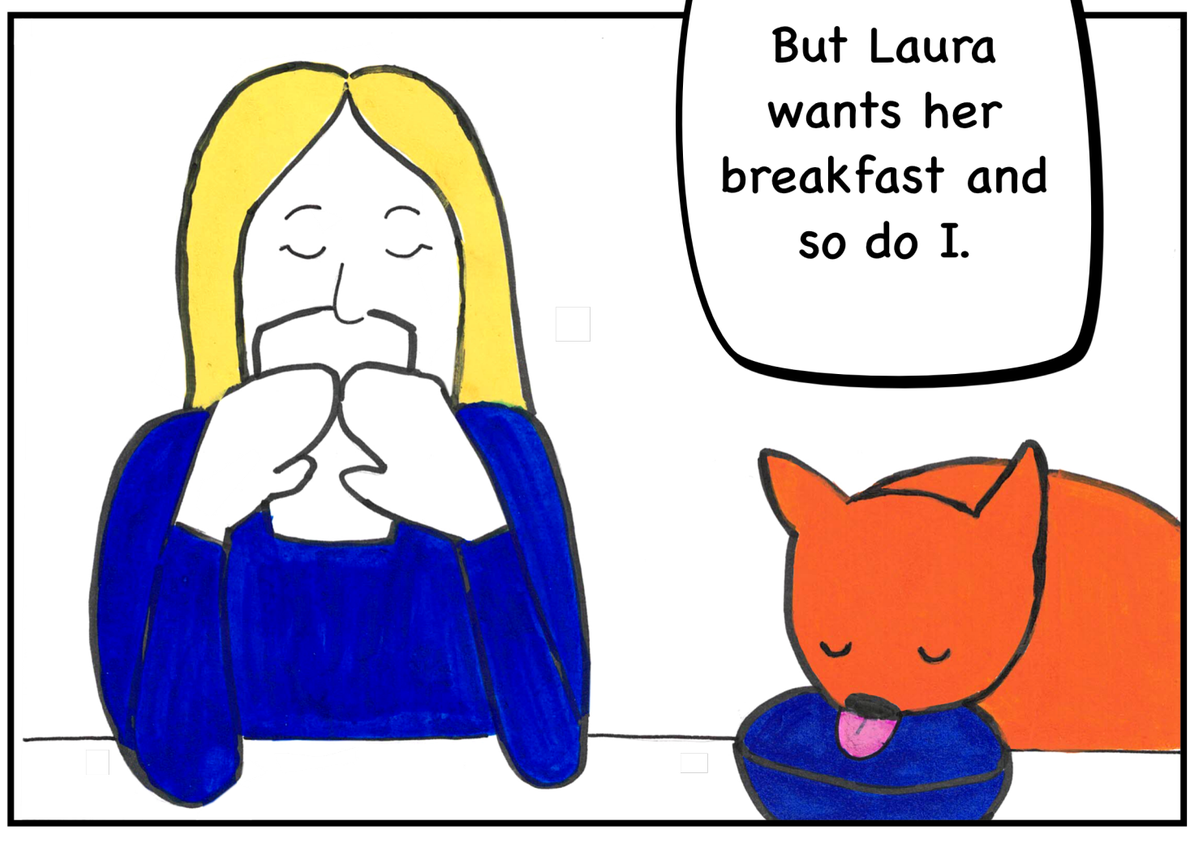

Would it matter?

HUMAN RELATIONSHIPS

I can feel the warmth of the sun.

Waking up for work is always hard.

But Laura wants her breakfast and so do I.

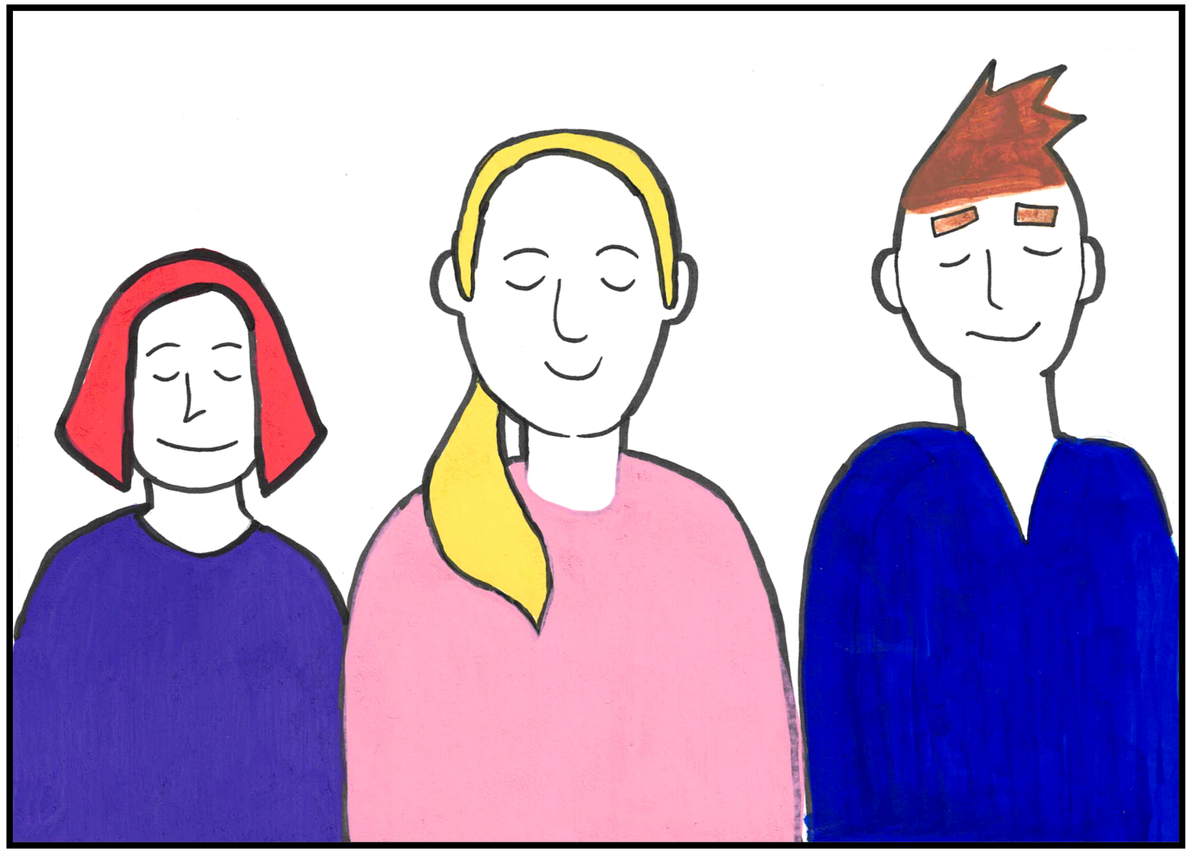

The bus in the morning is filled with kids' laughter.

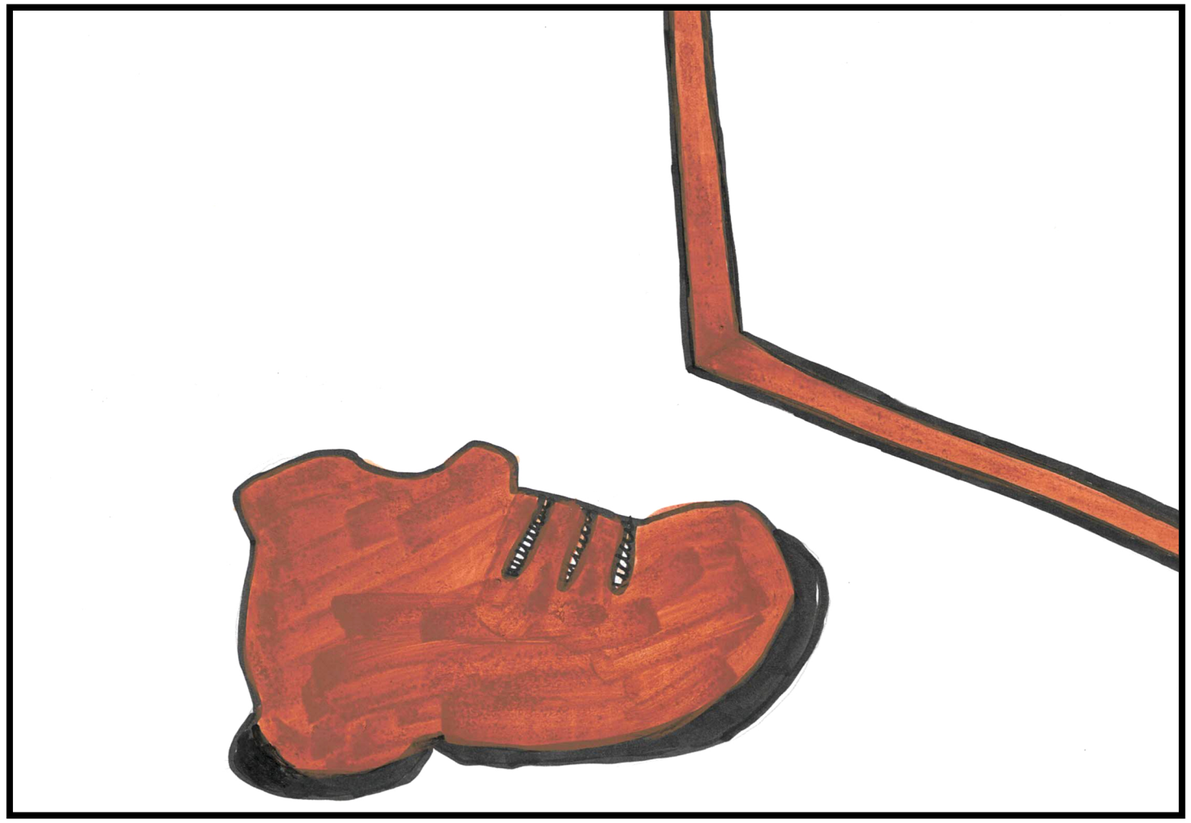

Mark always shares his lunchbreak with me.

I can hear Mark sniffing.
He never handled spicy food well.

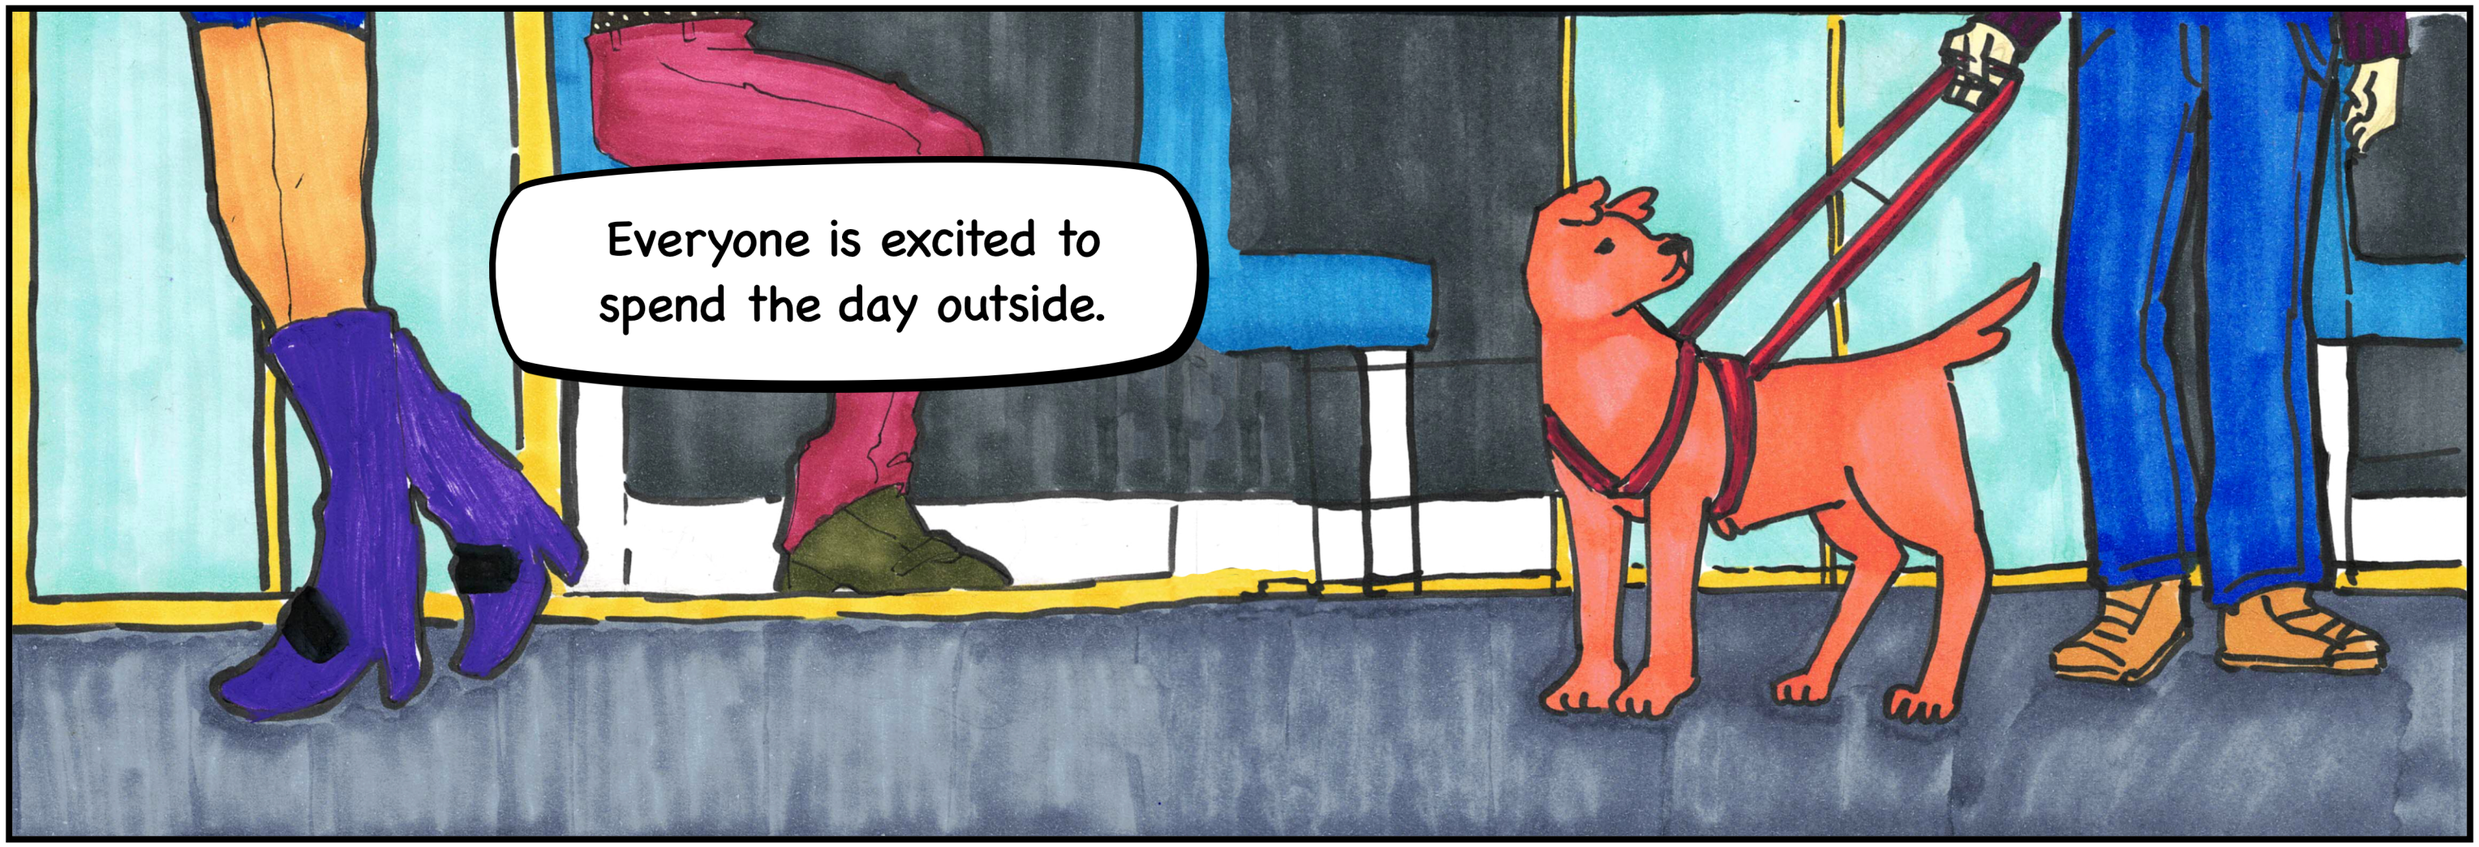

It's good to see you again!

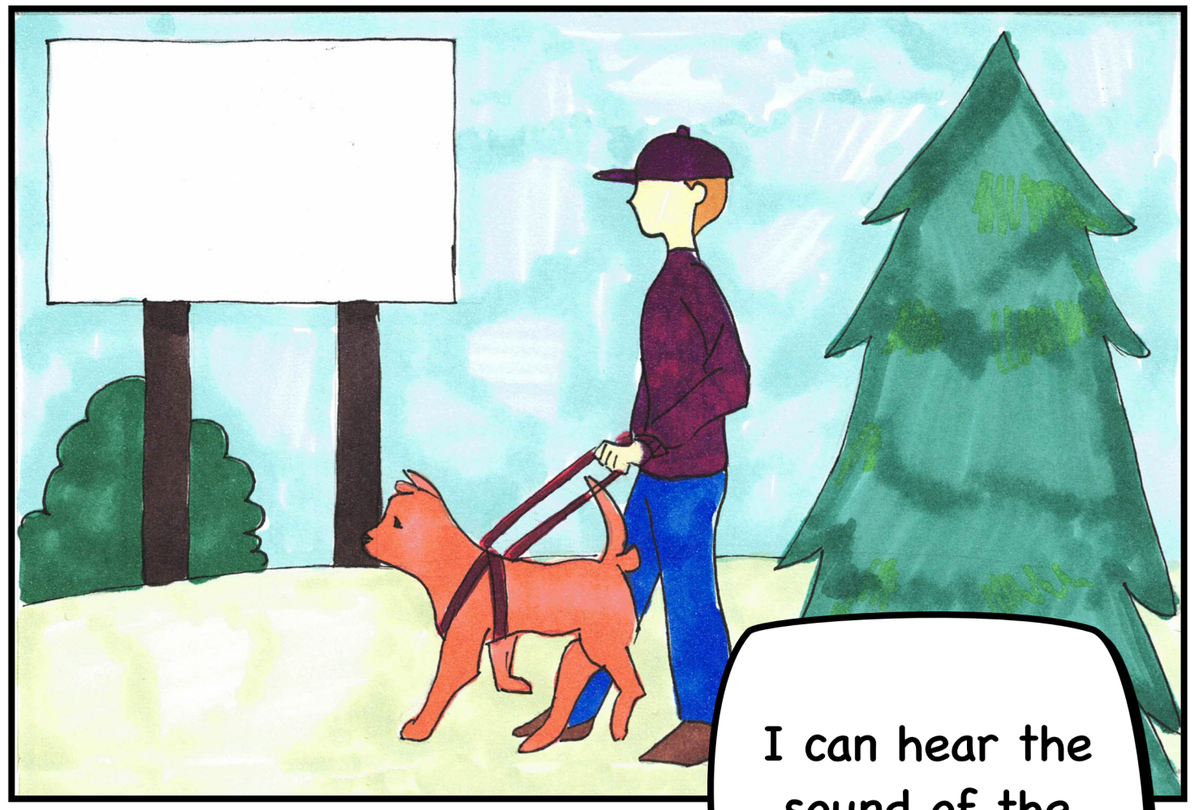

NATURE

Spring has begun.

Everyone is excited to spend the day outside.

The smell of spring is also exciting to me.

I can hear the sound of the river nearby.

The sand under my paws feels warm.

But the cold water always makes me love our walks.
